

Jing Wang, PhD, MPH, RN, FAAN
Dean and Professor
College of Nursing
Florida State University

Professor Jing Wang, PhD, MPH, RN, FAAN, is Dean and Professor at the Florida State University College of Nursing in the U.S., launching the nation's first MSN in AI, and ranked as the #1 public nursing school on NIH-funded research in 2025. She is an internationally recognized leader in nursing, digital health, and ageing, founding editor of JMIR Aging, and founder of the Global Alliance on Smart Health Home and the Nursing & AI Innovation Consortium. Dr. Wang serves on the Board Chair and Immediate Past President of the Asian American and Pacific Islander Nurses Association (AAPINA), former Board of Directors for the National Coalition of Ethnic Minority Nurses Association (NCEMNA) and World Academy of Nursing Science, Board of Trustees of the Robert Wood Johnson Foundation, the National Advisory Council for Nursing at NIH, and National Advisory Council for the American Academy of Nursing's Institute on Nursing Leadership. As a Health and Aging Policy Fellow and American Political Science Association Congressional Fellow, she was a senior scientific advisor to the Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality (AHRQ), and worked with the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services (CMS) and the Office of the National Coordinator for Health Information Technology (ONC) as a senior policy advisor, reflecting her broad impact on advancing health systems transformation and technology-enabled care.